Saunders Bros. mill to close

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Saunders Brothers mill in Locke Mills is expected to close, according to town officials.

Employees reportedly were told of the closure Tuesday. There was no information available at press time regarding a timetable.

The mill, formerly owned by Duane Gilbert, employs about 50 people. Gilbert Manufacturing declared bankruptcy three years ago. It was purchased in 1999 by Saunders, which has corporate headquarters in Westbrook.

"We were all hoping this wouldn't happen," said Greenwood Town Manager Carol Whitman. She said the mill pays about $40,000 a year in taxes.

Saunders makes flatware dowels, turnings and other dowel products. When the company purchased Gilbert in June of 1999, it had planned to double the existing sales within a year.

Greenwood looks to the shape of its future

By ALISON ALOISIO

Some of the best features Greenwood offers include Mt. Abram, the lakes, the ice caves and the rural quality of life.

And, in the words of one resident, "It's 550 miles from New York City."

Those are just a few of the assets that citizens want to preserve over the next 10 years.

About two dozen residents gathered Tuesday night to help the town's Comprehensive Planning Committee set planning priorities.

The committee is aiming to have a comprehensive plan to present at the 2003 Town Meeting.

The plan will provide general recommendations intended to guide future updating and writing of town ordinances.

Tuesday's meeting identified characteristics worth preserving, as well as issues the town may face in the next decade.

Those attending the meeting were asked to list both in a brainstorming session facilitated by John Maloney of the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments (AVCOG).

Plenty to be proud of

Among the positive characteristics noted were the traditional village; the wilderness area in the western part of town along the Greenwood road; the scenic landscape and views (Patch Mountain and various ledges); the ponds and other water bodies; and Mt. Abram and other recreational resources (such as snowmobiling, cross-country skiing and the town beach).

Several residents also praised town services, particularly the quality of snow plowing in the winter. Other specifics cited were the recycling program, the Fire Department, the active legion hall, the friendly atmosphere at the Town Office and the historic buildings and features (one was noted the "historic" tire pile, which has recently departed).

Worries

Among concerns listed: the loss

Road name immortalizes town's immigrant past

But does it do so unfairly?

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

The Alcohol Mary Road sign is the most wanted road sign in Greenwood. According to Carol Whitman, town manager, it has been stolen a number of times.

"The last time it was stolen, it was nailed to a tree with long spikes so that they couldn't pull it out," Whitman said, "so they cut the tree and took the part of the tree with the sign."

The sign, which pays ignoble honor to one Finnish immigrant, is a small part of the history of area Finns. And its namesake's story provides insight into the dream of prosperity that so many Finns came to America to find.

Passage to America

Her name wasn't Mary, it was Matleena Heikkinen. She was part of a Finnish Diaspora that began in the mid-1800s and lasted into the 1930s. During that time, a half-million Finns migrated to the U.S.

According to the Institute of Migration, people left Finland for a number of reasons. Declines in the shipping industry caused an economic depression. A rapidly burgeoning population caused land shortages. Young men in their prime, the majority of the immigrants, were being conscripted into the Russian Army.

Bethel selectmen fear pond grant's strings would tie the town's hands

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Burned once, Bethel selectmen are reacting warily to the latest offer of free federal money.

Technically, the town still owes the federal government $400,000 — in repayment of an economic development grant for Bethel Station that failed to create the necessary number of new jobs. (The government is not pressing to have the money returned, and Town Manager Scott Cole said he was confident the town would be able to provide job-creation documentation that would prevent its having to return the $400,000.)

If accepted, $25,000 would be added to the $150,000 already available

The latest offer is for far less money — $25,000, to be put toward the proposed swimming pond on the North Road.

But it comes with "lots of strings," said Dutch Dresser, chairman of the Board of Selectmen at last week's board meeting.

The project agreement (it is with the Maine Department of Conservation and the National Park Service) runs to 11 pages of fine print.

"I read through that and I know why we don't take any federal money down the street," said Dresser, referring to Gould Academy, where he is associate headmaster.

Other members of the board shared his reservations — especially regarding the requirement

Strong ski season here predicted

From STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Ski areas in Maine are anticipating a strong season despite the gloom that's been hanging over much of the tourism industry since Sept. 11.

Sunday River Ski Resort in Newry opened Saturday, a week earlier than last season. Snowmaking continues as temperatures allow, and the resort expects to have top to bottom skiing by Tuesday, according to spokesperson Susan Duplessis.

"Season pass sales remain very strong and other indicators are strong as well; the phone lines were extremely busy in the last week and website traffic has more than doubled from this time last year," Duplessis said. "Besides the tremendous momentum from the exceptional winter last year, it seems that the resort is beginning to see the effect of people choosing to spend their vacations closer to home in light of the Sept. 11 attack."

"We're thrilled that business is thriving," Duplessis said, "but certainly would prefer that the sole impetus be from renewed enthusiasm for the sport. We remain saddened by the national tragedy."

Elsewhere across the state, reservation rates are holding strong and sales of season passes are up compared to the same time last year,

Deer hunt tally down

By ALISON ALOISIO

Deer tagging stations in the Bethel area are seeing a drop in numbers this season. The falloff reflects a statewide pattern.

"It's way down," said LeeAnn Wright of Bob's Corner Store in Locke Mills. So far, they've tagged 16 deer. The total last season was 41, putting the store on a pace to tag about 32 deer by the end of the season.

Hunters coming in, said Wright, are commenting the woods "are real empty," especially of young deer.

Last year's heavy snows are being blamed for reducing deer numbers.

At G&T Country Store in West Bethel, 25 deer had been tagged as of Nov. 12. Last year, it was 42 on the same date.

At Mills Market in Andover, the count (bucks only) was 54 on Tuesday. As of Nov. 18 last year, the count was 114.

In late October, the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife had predicted that hunters would "probably not match last year's record buck harvest of 21,422, the number of successful hunters should be in line with that

STRONG MISSION STATEMENT

To the Editor:

The Nov. 8 Citizen article, "Moosehead to Bethel system of X-C trails and huts are envisioned," is the Western Mountains Foundation of Carra-basset Valley's ambitious vision (WMF) to create a series of multiple use trails and huts across the valleys on government and privately owned land. It's a good idea that would help local recreationalists and the local tourist industry. The article goes on to say they got the idea from an Appalachian Mountain Club's (AMC) "would have done differently (in planning the huts)" comment.

I have an idea that may help the promoters in pursuing their goal, and it also has something to do with the AMC that some of us wished they "had done differently." The idea is to have in their mission statement and by-laws right from the beginning that the intent is to be good neighbors with private landowners and local communities. In addition, the bylaws should state that the new association is not to try to control private lands in any way or to get the government to buy the land for them. That should help to reassure private landowners that cooperating with WMF wouldn't be harmful to them in the future.

The AMC was a good neighbor to local communities and landowners when any of their trails were on private lands. We believe that changed when they got the government (us) to buy the corridors. Now the emphasis seems to be more on doing what it takes to gain memberships and foundation grants and that too often leads to problems for landowners. That's unfortunate, and it has made many landowners leery about dealing with groups with a goal such as WMF's. This simple request would make it clear to private landowners that the true goals are as stated in the article and it would go a long way toward getting their cooperation. Even if today's WMF intent is good, organizations change over time, and new people can have different interests and go in different directions. Having a strong mission and set of bylaws could limit the WMF's potential to harm those whose help they need to reach their goal.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE OFFERED

To the Editor:

Everyone is warmly invited to join Christian Scientists at their annual Thanksgiving Service Thursday, Nov. 22 at 10 a.m. at the society located at 9 Stevens Street, just off Alpine Street in Norway. This service is dedicated to the sharing of gratitude to God for healings and blessings throughout the past year. Acknowledgement of the things for which one is grateful is a way to heal the sense of fear and vulnerability society is facing today with the evidence of God's love and presence in our lives. The special Thanksgiving lesson-sermon includes readings from the Bible and correlative selections from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy.

Readings from the Bible include the call from Psalms to "Sing unto the Lord with Thanksgiving." Especially relevant today is a passage from the Christian Science textbook, "The rich in spirit help the poor in one grand brotherhood, all having the same Principle, or Father; and blessed is that man who seeth his brother's need and supplieth it, seeking his own in another's good."

The president's Thanksgiving Proclamation, hymns, and testimonies of gratitude appropriate for the occasion will round out the hour. Childcare will be provided and no collection will be taken.

SUPPORT THE HOUSING APPEAL

To the Editor:

On Nov. 20, the Bethel Board of Appeals will hear a citizens' appeal on the Community Concepts project at Bethel Station.

I urge everyone who signed the form requesting the appeal to attend the meeting. Al Barth and I have been designated as spokesmen, but we encourage any interested citizens to come and support our effort.

We feel that placing the project in Bethel Station might jeopardize the CDBG grant. In addition, the status of the Mechanic Street extension unnecessarily exposes the town to costs in the future. (See other reasons cited in the appeal request, below.)

The meeting begins at 6 p.m. at Crescent Park Elementary School.

Pat Dooen
Bethel

Points raised in residents' appeal

The following points were raised in the document asking the town Appeals Board to overturn the Planning Board's approval of an affordable housing development in Bethel Station. The document was signed by 55 residents and two abutters of the proposed development (Citizen, Nov. 1):

- 1) Previous site plan and subdivision approvals for this parcel were not duly considered by the Planning Board in the September 26 decision.
- 2) Various sections of the town's Site Plan and Subdivision ordinances were not properly considered in the September 26 decision.
- 3) The approved site plan leaves, unanswered, the status of the Mechanic Street Extension, thus compromising the town's infrastructure and unnecessarily exposing the town to significant construction costs in the future.
- 4) The decision jeopardizes existing CDBG grant specifications of job creation, also unnecessarily exposing the town to significant repayment costs in the future.
- 5) Community Concepts has not presented any data showing that such a housing need in Bethel exists, despite requests made by the Planning Board for such data.
- 6) The presence of family housing is in direct opposition to the original concept of the Bethel Station project.

Telstar reaches out to parents

By ALISON ALOISIO

There has been a steady parade of parents in and out of Telstar high and middle schools since school began in August.

But they're not headed to the principal's office to discuss uncooperative youngsters. Rather, the staff and new principal Dave Murphy are trying to head off problems by opening the lines of communication early.

The campaign began in early September, as parents of high-schoolers were invited in to join students and teacher-advisers in their Satellite groups. The dozen or so students in each group meet daily with the teacher, providing a consistent connection throughout the year.

In October, teachers contacted parents about any students who were showing signs of academic troubles, and invited them to a conference.

Next on the agenda: voluntary parent conferences next week, on Nov. 20. This time it's the parents' turn to ask teachers to sit down and talk.

The October/November conference combination is a departure from earlier practice. In past years, parents have simply scheduled conferences in November. But teachers found that wasn't the most effective approach.

Although the staff is always glad to have parents come in, said Murphy, the ones who scheduled conferences were generally not the ones the teachers needed to see the most.

That led to this year's October conferences.

The kids' turn

In the second half of the year, the kids will take over more responsibility for letting their parents know how school is going.

Between March 15 and the end of the school year, every student in grades 6 through 11 will lead his or her own "conference" with parents and teachers.

They'll have help from the teachers, who will be trained later this month to guide the kids through a presentation. Likely included will be material the students save throughout the year in their "portfolio," a collection of their best schoolwork.

The "student-led conference" was born several years ago in the middle school, when a handful of eighth-graders voluntarily presented their work to parents and staff.

The program has grown since then, and the staff now feels the larger student body is ready to jump in.

The expanded plan came out of the Promising Futures grant program, now in its third year at the high school. The Satellite groups are also part of the effort, as are seminar classes and a senior project presentation program.

Newsletter planned

Parents will also be getting more general news from Telstar in the form of an upgraded newsletter, according to Murphy.

Newsletters have been produced at the school in previous years, usually reporting on activities that had already taken place. Murphy wants to shift the focus to looking a little more at what's coming up at the school.

For example, the first newsletter, scheduled for December, will include a look at winter sports. Staff members will also be invited to contribute articles on "an issue they might have a passion about," said Murphy.

He hopes to put out three or four a year. The publication will have a newer look, possibly printed on glossy paper. It will be delivered either by mail or as a newspaper insert, he said.

Skiing

according to Greg Sweetser, executive director of the Ski Maine Association. Sales of the trade group's coupon book are also running ahead, he said.

Because Maine's tourism economy relies heavily on visitors who can drive to the state, it has been insulated by one of the problems plaguing far-flung destinations: fear of flying.

New Englanders and New Yorkers who might have skied at resorts out West or abroad may be rethinking their plans, said Nat Bowditch, assistant director of the Maine Office of Tourism.

"They're saying, 'We're going to stay close to home and drive,'" Bowditch said.

Maine ski areas get most of their business from in-staters, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, Sweetser said.

Anecdotal evidence suggests that more people from those places will be heading to Maine to ski, according to Melissa Rock, a spokeswoman for Shawnee Peak in Bridgton. Rock said she's been hearing from industry people that fewer skiers will be flying for their fun this year.

"We're going to be beneficiaries of that in the short term. It's certainly a reaction (to Sept. 11)," Rock said.

Most skiers at Shawnee Peak — like most visitors to Maine in general — drive to get there. Rock said Shawnee Peak skiers generally live within a three-hour drive.

"We don't get anybody who flies. That's not even a blip on the radar screen," Rock said.

Maine's ski industry also expects to ride the coattails of last year's success into the coming season.

"Last year was a record snowfall. And if we look at snowfall charts over history, the years we have big snowfall there is a carry-over syndrome into the next year," Sweetser said.

Having snow on the ground early in the season is key to luring the occasional skier to the slopes, Sweetser said. When those skiers don't see snow, they don't get in the mood to ski.

"A couple snowstorms in December — it doesn't even have to snow in January — we'll have a good season because there's snow on the ground," he said.

Grant

that if the grant is accepted the pond must be open to non-Bethel residents.

This is not the first time such a dilemma had arisen. In 1999 the town was close to closing on a three-acre parcel of shorefront at Songo Pond, but the deal collapsed when the owner, Barbara Annan of Albany, insisted that the town's deed include a clause granting residents of Albany Township permanent access to the beach.

Town officials balked at this. There was no reason to exclude Albany residents, they said at the time, but the town could not accept such an encumbrance on its deed.

Following the collapse of that deal, the town Beach Committee began exploring other options, which led eventually to the current plan to create a pond on a North Road parcel offered to the town by Ernest and Alberta Angevine.

But once again town officials are reluctant to give up control over the project, including the ability to determine who can and who cannot use the facility.

"I'm not sure but if we get five years down the road and the pond is a real success, and we had to say, 'this has to be for Bethel residents only,' we probably couldn't do that," said Selectman Don Bennett, who is also chairman of the Beach Committee.

The selectmen took no formal action on the grant agreement last week, but agreed to review it in more detail before next week's meeting and to provide copies to members of the Beach Committee.

Bennett said that committee also had "some apprehension as to whether or not we should go this route."

At Town Meeting in 2000 voters agreed to raise $75,000 for the project, and the following year they added another $25,000. That money, when combined with a promised $50,000 gift from the Chadbourne Family, brings the total now available to $150,000, which was the original rough estimate for the cost of the project.

The pond project does face another, non-financial, hurdle next week. The project was approved by the Bethel Planning Board in September, but that approval has been appealed and will be taken up by the Appeals Board Tuesday evening.

That meeting will be held at Crescent Park School, beginning at 6 p.m.

Deer

AT LAST, SUCCESS—After two weeks of hunting every day, Gene Griffin of Berlin, N.H. bagged this 215-pound buck Tuesday. He tagged it at G & T Country Store in West Bethel, where the number of taggings is down from last season. "They just aren't out there this year," said Griffin, who said he had not even seen a deer until the day he shot this one. Griffin said he's had plenty of time to go out hunting every day — he was one of many workers laid off from the pulp mill in Berlin.

of deer hunting seasons in the mid- to late 1990s," and predicted a harvest of about 32,800.

Still, said the department, the deer population this year was higher than it was three years ago.

Lucky Luxton

The deer count may be down overall, but at Dave Luxton's house in West Bethel, it's at record levels.

Circumstances combined to give Luxton three deer in the first two weeks of the season.

On the first day of hunting season, his wife, Debbie, was driving out the Flat Road during the evening when a fawn ran out in front of her car. She struck and killed it, and the family kept the animal.

On Oct. 31, a pickup truck struck and killed a doe on Route 2, right in front of Luxton's house. The driver and police didn't find the animal immediately, but Luxton found it next to the road later. He brought it in and got a permit from the Bethel Police Department to keep it.

Then, this past Saturday — Luxton's birthday — he was sitting near his window when he saw another deer crossing the road. He went outside with his rifle, and the animal came back across the road and into his field. He shot the 150-pound animal there, and tagged it as his kill for the season.

"In 40 years of hunting, it's the first time I looked out the window and saw a deer (he could shoot in hunting season)," Luxton said.

"It's like flipping a coin three times and having it come up heads every time."

RUMFORD—The Androscoggin River Watershed Council recently received the H. King Cummings leadership Award from the Western Mountain Alliance. The WMA honors a non-profit organization in its five-county area every other year. The organization must reflect the WMA's mission to improve the quality of life and strengthen the regional identity of the western mountains region. The watershed council aims to protect the river while supporting controlled community and economic growth in the towns along its 170-mile length. Marcel Polak of Woodstock is the chairman, and was instrumental in the formation of the council.

Fire station to go back to voters

PARIS—Selectmen have agreed to scale back plans for a new fire station and send the issue back to the voters. Citizens rejected a proposed $3.1-million station Nov. 6 by one vote, 445-444. The Fire Station Building Committee is now proposing a cheaper station that would have one floor instead of two, among other changes. The estimated cost for the new plan is expected to be available in several weeks.

Hunter charged with assault

THORNDIKE—A Rhode Island hunter has been charged with aggravated assault for allegedly kicking a Thorndike man who told a group of men they couldn't hunt on his property. Vincent DeCarlo, 43, of Foster, R.I., was freed after posting $3,000 bail. Others in the group were expected to be charged as well by the Waldo County Sheriff's Department. DeCarlo was charged with attacking Richard Johnson, 58, in his own driveway last week. Johnson told the group they couldn't hunt on his property because there were too many houses nearby. Johnson said the men countered that the property wasn't posted with "No Hunting" signs, so they couldn't be banned from hunting there. Landowners are not required, however, to post signs to keep hunters, or anyone, off private property, and a hunter can be charged with criminal trespassing if he is asked to leave and refuses.

Six-seat chairlift under construction

DANBURY, N.H.—A major phase of construction of New Hampshire's first six-seat chairlift is about to begin at Ragged Mountain. The six-seater will replace a double chairlift, and will run from the main base lodge to the summit of Ragged Peak. The $2.2 million lift runs at a pace of 1,000 vertical feet a minute.

Man survives 100-foot, headfirst fall

TOWNSHIP 6—The top of the 3,068-foot western Maine mountain was within Aaron Chabot's reach. He grabbed onto a rock wedged in a crevasse to pull himself up. But at the last moment, the rock popped loose and the 24-year-old Auburn man plunged 100 feet headfirst down Tumbledown Mountain, landing on a ledge. His climbing partner, Nathan Wing of Auburn, thought Chabot was dead. After a difficult rescue following his Oct. 20 accident, Chabot was airlifted to Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston to be treated for numerous facial fractures along with a dislocated hip and knee, concussion and collapsed lung, among other injuries. He is expected to be released Monday. Chabot said his mind was clear during the free falls between ledges he smashed into on the way down, and he only blacked out for a short time after he hit the bottom. Wing went down the mountain and got a ride to Weld, where he called for help. Chabot was rescued with help from a helicopter from Brunswick Naval air station. Sgt. Rick Mills of the Maine Warden Service said what ultimately kept Chabot alive was his own determination to survive.

Saddleback for sale

RANGELEY—One of the largest parcels of recreation land in Maine has gone on the market: the Saddleback ski area and 8,373 acres near Rangeley. Included in the package is the 358-acre Saddleback Lake, 13 square miles of woodland, a mountain bowl cradled by high peaks, and 41 downhill trails on 4,120-foot Saddleback Mountain, the second-highest ski mountain in Maine. The Appalachian Trail crosses its summit, on its route from Georgia to Mt. Katahdin. The asking price is $12 million. If fully developed, the sellers said last week, the existing area could be transformed into the largest ski resort in the East, with thousands of homes. "Our family's dream," said Katherine Breen, daughter of the owner, "is to see it become one of the most amazing ski areas on the East Coast." It's also possible the land could be sold to a so-called "kingdom buyer," for a private, wilderness retreat. Either of these scenarios worries conservation and hiking interests. They are disappointed by the high asking price, which they say will preclude more modest development and further preservation of the area's hiking and wilderness potential.

Turkey Tuesday coming

LOCKE MILLS—The 11th annual Turkey Tuesday Thanksgiving dinner will take place Nov. 20 at 6 p.m. at the Locke Mills Legion Hall, on the Gore Road. The public is invited, and those attending are asked to bring a dish or beverage to share, as well as plates and utensils (RSVP 824-3754). Cans of food and/or money will also be accepted to benefit the District Exchange Food Bank.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Bid for scratch tickets fails

At 4:40 p.m. on Nov. 10 police received a call from a business employee who said she had taken a false ID from a young male trying to buy scratch tickets.

Friday, Nov. 9

At 10:30 p.m. police were dispatched to a possible domestic disturbance on the West Bethel Road. It was found to be a loud party. The resident was told to end the party and have the subjects leave.

The animal control officer issued a citation to Jan Brownstein, 52, of Bethel for having a dog at large and keeping a dangerous dog.

Saturday, Nov. 10

At 1:01 a.m. a subject was stopped on Vernon St. for erratic operation. He showed signs of intoxication, and was given field sobriety tests. Robert Lane, 31, of Everett, Mass. was arrested for OUI.

Monday, Nov. 13

At 10:30 p.m. police observed a vehicle fail to stop at the intersection of the Sunday River Road and Route 2. The officer stopped the vehicle. Wayne E. Vetrone, 38, of Newtron, Mass., was charged with operating without a license.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists all cases of adults being arrested or issued a criminal summons, but does not include all reports of other police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

The Comprehensive Planning Committee will incorporate the input in drawing up a plan.

The committee's next step will be to conduct a more detailed inventory of town resources, including public facilities and services, outdoor recreation and natural resources, land use, fiscal capacity, historical, cultural and archeological resources, housing, local economy and demographics.

The members of the committee include chairman Alan Hamilton, Jeff Harren, Rodney Westleigh, Ray Seames, Susan Buckley and David Brainard.

Many Finns chose America because they could earn higher wages here and land was available. Most settled in Massachusetts, Michigan, and Minnesota. But some made their way to West Paris, Maine.

Matleena Heikkinen left Finland for West Paris with her six children, who were most likely in their teens, sometime around 1900. She was a widow. Like many of the Finnish immigrants to the area, Matleena's family received tickets from another West Paris Finn, Lauri Immonen. On arrival, a first priority would be to find work and pay Immonen for their passage to America.

Hard labor for a farm

According to Taisto Koskela, a founder of the Finnish-American Society in West Paris, the men easily found work if they were willing to do hard labor. They worked in lumber camps and quarries, in the slate mines in Monson, and building railroads.

Most of the immigrants to West Paris probably worked on farms and in the lumber camps. "They were excellent lumbermen," Koskela said, "Finland is heavily forested, and they were experienced loggers."

Hard work provided the income to purchase a farm, and there were plenty of farms available in the area. Following the Civil War, farms, especially hill farms, across northern New England were abandoned as people sought land free of rocks and frost in the West. Finns coming to West Paris purchased many of the farms abandoned by those pioneers.

According to Vieno Heikkinen, Matleena's grandson, two of her sons purchased farms in the area. Vieno's father, Abel, purchased a farm in Turner. His uncle, Otto, also became a farmer. Vieno believes that both of his aunts, Mary and Hilda, married farmers as well. Another son, Renne, became a gunsmith. Kalle changed his last name to Higgins, and purchased the National Hotel in Lewiston. His descendants still run Higgins Sporting Goods in Auburn.

A home of her own

With her children settled, Vieno said, Matleena wanted a home of her own. She settled in Richardson Hollow in Greenwood sometime around 1910.

The neighborhood was home to a number of Finns. The rugged terrain of hillside farms, forested hilltops, and valley ponds was reminiscent of Finland.

Vieno remembers his grand-

Vieno Heikkinen (left) remembers his grandmother Matleena Heikkinen's house near the Richardson Hollow Road in Greenwood. "It was just a camp. I can't remember if some of the boys made it. It was simple, like a lumberman's camp. It had a wood stove. It was a single room, with a small bed and a pump for water. Her family took care of her and allowed her to live independently."

mother's house. "It was just a camp," he said. "I can't remember if some of the boys made it. It was simple, like a lumberman's camp. It had a wood stove. It was a single room, with a small bed and a pump for water. Her family took care of her and allowed her to live independently."

"She tried to have a small garden," he said, "but mostly relatives took her vegetables. They cut her firewood. She washed her clothes in the brook."

He remembers his grandmother as a good Finnish woman. "She was very good, she got along with people. She didn't stick her nose in other people's business, she was independent."

Because her house was too small for overnight guests, she would often visit her children's homes. "She'd come and stay for two or three weeks," Vieno said. "I had an old Model-T pickup truck that I'd take her around in."

Berry wine

In the late 1800s, part of a good Finnish housewife's skills included preserving the precious fruits of summer for the long, dark winters. Making berry wines was one way of achieving this. Matleena made berry wine in her small house. It would be used, Vieno said, as a cough medicine or served as a dessert. When families and neighbors gathered to socialize, berry wines helped brighten the festivities.

Vieno went to Finland in 1960. "People still made their own berry wine," he said. "When they'd get two or three families together, they'd give me a little nip. There'd be a small dance, with a fellow playing accordion, another playing violin, doing Finn polkas."

After two decades in this country, Matleena was most likely settled in her ways. She probably didn't cease winemaking in 1920, when prohibition became the law of the land. Thus, the legend of a bootlegger, with the connotations of ill-gotten gains, was born.

But Vieno denies his grandmother was a bootlegger. "She never sold any wine that I know of," he said.

He is unhappy with the Alcohol Mary Road name.

"It degrades her," he said.

He's not sure how it came to be. "I don't think people mentioned it (his grandmother's winemaking) too much, but then some folks moved in from outside, and they started spreading the story. It made her worse than she really was."

Taisto Koskela agrees with Vieno. "The Finns were stubborn. They were honest, they paid their bills. They made their own way, they didn't ask for it. They'd support themselves somehow. If she made some wine it doesn't mean she was a bootlegger."

A Finnish community

Most area residents who remember Matleena Heikkinen were children when she died in 1936, at the age of 82. They remember her walking along the road or washing her clothes in the brook.

If these children of Finnish immigrants know stories of Matleena as a bootlegger, they are too polite to tell them. In this tightly knit community, there is a deep work ethic and high standard of behavior. Spreading rumors and gossip is not acceptable behavior.

Finnish descendants still gather every third week of the month at the Finnish-American Society in West Paris. They have a business meeting, entertainment, and coffee and Finnish cooking.

And if they tell stories of Matleena Heikkinen, they are the stories of a good Finnish woman who brought six children to America. They are the stories of achievements of her grandchildren and great grandchildren, and how they have spread across the country.

Those descendants, wherever they might be, are still members of the Finnish community of West Paris. And they still honor Matleena's grave in the Finnish Cemetery, marked by a small stone that reads "Matleena Heikkinen, mother."

Kathleen Herlihy enjoys her work, even the commute. As a pediatrician at Stephens Memorial, she can take the time to get to know her young patients and make a difference in their lives. When not practicing medicine, she likes to spend time bicycling and hiking with her family. We're glad that Dr. Herlihy made her home where the quality of life is matched by the quality of medical care.

Rush hour for Dr. Herlihy means pedaling faster.

Bethel

by Virginia Keniston

Rachel Rice and friends of Guilford, Conn., spent some time at their chalet at Sunday River so that they might get in the first day of skiing. While in the area, they visited her grandparents, Mary and Lefty Keniston.

Guests of Betty Perkins last week were Mike and Cindy Welch of Wilton, Melvin and Jan Wilson of Ellsworth and Beverly Merrill of Winthrop.

Ruth and Bob Prescott of Florida visited with Amy Davis a few days this past week.

Dick Paine of Keene, N.H., and Roger Adams of Simsbury, Conn., visited Mary and Bud Paine over the weekend.

Bob and Ginny Keniston celebrated their birthdays with a family gathering on Sunday, Nov. 11, at the home of Lennie and Becky Shaw. The occasion also served to celebrate Thanksgiving. Those present were Glenn I. and Martha Bangs of Dresden; Glenn and Julie Bangs, Kalyann, Abbie and Madison of South Paris; Rachel and Ted McKnight of Jericho, Vt.; Josie and Darrel Hannon of Vermont; David and Jodie Keniston of Norway; Heath and Karole Keniston of South Paris; Peter and Stacey Keniston, Elise and Sarah of Turner; Heather and Treyu Keniston of Mechanic Falls; and hosts Lennie and Becky Shaw, Jen and Jon.

Donald Rice was honored at a retirement party on Wednesday at the Country Way Restaurant in South Paris. He retired from the Maine Department of Transportation Bridge Department. Those attending were his mother, Mary, and Lefty Keniston, Donna and Alton Howe, Sheldon and Jackie Rice of Watford and Adam Rice of Farringdale.

Kenneth and Gwyneth Bohr have returned home after a visit with relatives in Texas.

Brad and Diane Smith have returned from a golfing trip to South Carolina. They had lovely weather and got to see the migration of boats going from North Carolina to the south.

John, Stacey and Savannah Vincent of Houston, Texas, spent the past week with Jerry and Shireen Vincent.

Alden and Mabel Kennett spent the weekend with Ellen and Burns Fisher in Nashua, N.H. While there, they attended the Quilt Show.

Bethel House

by Ruth Cummings
I told you of the little boy that told his pastor when he was big and had money he would give him some. The pastor asked why and he replied, "Because Daddy said he never heard a poor preacher." Well our Pastor Rick is not a poor preacher. He visited me recently and money started rolling out of his pockets. I found a penny two days later.

Cack Bean is a very nice man. He lives in the Bethel House. He will take trash to the dump for the residents there.

I know the Bethel Citizen is mailed to many states. Maybe you have read my column. I am Ruth Cummings. The column is headed Bethel House as I lived there when I started writing. I am at 141 Bethel Road, West Paris, ME 04289 now. It is Ledgeview Nursing Home. A friend suggested I ask the readers of my column how many have a Portland in their state. There is a Portland, Maine.

It is surprising how much more a person that writes to me and I have not seen for three weeks knows more about me than I do myself.

Only 10 degrees here early morning on Oct. 29.

Carroll and Bea Bean went for a ride Monday and visited their son in New Hampshire. They had dinner there.

Cathy Newell brought me a "Baldacci for Governor" bumper sticker and put it on the front of my walker. I am a registered Republican but when we were trying to keep the post office on Main Street in Bethel we were urged to write to Washington. I wrote to Cohen, Snowe and Baldacci. Who helped fight and kept me posted? Just Baldacci, so he gets my vote.

Carroll Bean is helping his son in Milan, N.H. build a garage.

I have not felt at all well since Oct. 30. When I feel up to it, I will be writing to some of you.

There are thoughtful people in West Paris. Small children have been in with bags of nuts, raisins and chocolate chips.

Donald Haines visited with us on Thursday and then went upstairs to entertain the residents.

Alder Cummings and friend visited me one day.

Patty was in talking with me one afternoon. Said she read my column but never saw her name in it. Well, here it is Patty. You help me a lot when you have time to chat a minute and to go for a walk in the hall with me.

Sunday River Valley

by Rockie Graham

The sun is shining and the corn snow flakes are flitting about softly in the air. The temperatures are colder than they have been, but perfectly normal for this time of year. It is the gray season, but if those flakes get together and fall a little more rigorously, gray season may turn white. That is okay with me. If the temperature is going to drop, it may as well bring fun times with it.

It looks like fun times are exactly what we are going to see in the Valley. There are two new businesses here and a third to open soon. This weekend, as promised, I visited the new snowboard shop. It is called Pinnacle and its card says it is owned and operated by snowboarders. Peter Libby and Zach Bailey own and operate the shop and it is inviting to visit, even to those of us who have not yet snowboarded. Both are delightful young men with a dream that I think will work out for them. They sell all manner of snowboard equipment, from boards to mittens to pants, etc. Check them out.

While at Pinnacle, I met Mike Lawlor, a local accountant who also runs snowshoe tours out of Sunday River Inn. These tours will include an astronomy tour. I'll be looking for that one in the future. Latest rumors are that our newest restaurant is going to be a pizza place. They may even deliver. Personally, the Italian restaurant sounded better, but any place that delivers will be welcome. From the look of the building, opening day can't be too far away.

Last weekend, the Town of Newry Celebration Committee held a turkey supper at the Newry Grange. It was well attended with almost 70 people from all over. The food was great, like an early Thanksgiving. The committee is getting ready for Newry's 200 Celebration. Part of that will be a cookbook. All are invited to submit recipes. Call the Town Office for more information. Look for more information from the Celebration Committee.

Having lost this column twice, I am sure I will leave pieces out. My computer is having a bad day. In any case, stay warm and watch out for those flakes. The Vista is still in the shop, but keep an eye out for it. It has to come home some day.

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

The Nov. 6 Referenda Election in Hanover took place at the Town Office.

Election warden was Bruce Powell. The clerk was Clem Worcester while Republican ballot clerks were Joan Everett and Paul Ramsey. Democratic clerks were Donna Worcester and Herb Adams. Sixty-three voters showed up at the polls to register their opinion on the six bond issues.

On Monday, heavy rain and snow invaded our valley. Higher elevations received about five inches of snow. On Tuesday and Wednesday the weather turned windy. On Wednesday, the high winds toppled a large pine tree onto Main Street, blocking traffic until the State Highway Department could clear the way. Rumford police were on the scene and directed traffic onto Mill Hill Road and Howard Pond Road. At about the same time, a delivery truck traveling along South Shore Road was halted when a tree fell onto the truck. Observers at Howard Pond reported that very strong winds were picking up water from the waves and blowing sheets of water 30 feet or so into the air and whipping them across the pond.

A dialogue has begun between the members of Gardner Roberts Memorial Library, Hanover Town officials and citizens with historic interest about preserving and possibly moving the library building from its location on Howard Pond Road to a site near the new Town Office. That would make the building more usable and easily accessible. It could continue to be a library and also serve as a museum for local history. Input from citizens is requested as to how such a project might be accomplished. Anyone with ideas or suggestions should share them with the library ladies or the town officials.

The Hanover Town Office has a new toy box for the younger visitors. The toy box was made possible through donations and assistance from Dr. Jarnahed Anvari and Ashley Glover.

The Solid Waste and Recycle Center in Bethel no longer will accept wood waste. A DEP approved wood-waste processing facility is located on Flat Road in West Bethel, about one mile off Route 2. That facility will only handle wood waste such as stumps and brush. It will not accept painted wood, treated wood, chipboard, plastic, wood with nails or wood that is otherwise contaminated. The site is open from April to November on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. From December to March, call 824-2417 for an appointment. Brush under six inches and less than 12 feet is $5 per cubic yard; larger wood is $15 per cubic yard as is stumps. Leaves are $5 per cubic yard.

East Bethel

by Nancy Mercer

Wendy Annis got her moose the first part of October up country near Fort Kent. It weighed about 600 pounds.

Esther Wilson gets around the house now without the walker and her eyes are much better, also.

Virginia Vincent of Montana is visiting for a couple of days with Rudi and Barbara Honkala.

Tanya Hebert of the seventh grade is on the honors list for the second quarter.

All the family of Herb and Rowena Dunham had their Thanksgiving dinner at the Locke Mills Church on Nov. 11. There were 51 people who enjoyed the dinner.

Lacy Hebert has been offered the chance to study at Oxford University for the spring semester in 2003.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gamble of Massachusetts visited Florence Hastings on Nov. 11.

Alder River Grange had a regular meeting on Nov. 9. This was the last meeting of the season in the hall. We will meet at Stan Howe's home on Broad Street for the winter. The times are 6 p.m. soup and 7 p.m. meeting. Our next meeting will be Dec. 14 and is the Christmas meeting. If you come, please bring something for our food pantry.

The elected officials of Bethel are worried about East Bethel? This is what I got from an article in the Sun Journal on Nov. 7. I doubt that they will be worried for long; they never have been before, so why now?

God Bless America.

Gilead

by Elise Caswell

The heart of our homeland has been infused with a level of patriotism that I have never before witnessed in my life, except perhaps for the old black and white film shorts of the end of World War II. Veterans' Day 2001 took on a holiday spirit made palpable by its existence at two levels — one past and historical and one very present and right this minute. The message is having an effect and young people seem moved by the possibility that they could have a real impact on the future of their country. The mood is exhilarating and at the same time frightening. I think hard about veterans.

My dad served in England and France in World War II and believed with all his heart that he was fighting the war to end all wars. His brother, my Uncle John, served in the Pacific where he was missing in action after jumping the hump in Burma, more than once causing his parents to brace for the worst yet pray for the best. My Aunt Nancy was also active as a nurse. Yet I was a child of the Vietnam Era and a flower child to boot. I marched on Washington side by side with Vietnam Veterans who questioned the USA's presence in Vietnam. My Uncle John, in a gesture of gratitude toward the Pacific native peoples for saving his life in Burma, served as a volunteer surgeon for a year in Vietnam while his wife stayed home to care for their five children. Just think of the small number of hearts all beating a different rhythm over war. Now consider that number growing exponentially as troops are deployed.

Memorial and Veterans' days always get me thinking about the human beings' history of war and the high price paid in lives. As a mother of two sons I consider the feelings of the unsung heroines who stay home from the active duty of war but have to fight that same war daily in their hearts. These are the mothers who feel for their country but have invested their

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published here by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

You know, nostalgia ain't what it used to be.

I hear older people talking about the "good old days" all the time, but what they're saying about them usually isn't all that good.

For example, every time there is a snow storm, which we will be having soon, that sets the "old timers" off reminiscing about the snow storms back when they were kids and it snowed for four days and four nights dumping 3 feet of snow per day. They scratch their heads and go on about the snow drifts that were higher than a house and packed so hard it took dynamite to move them.

On top of that, everyone was snowbound for days on end and if you didn't have a good supply of canned goods and some vegetables in the root cellar, you were in serious trouble. I personally don't see anything "good" about those "good old days."

More "good old days" talk comes from the "old timers" whenever the temperature dips down below zero, which it will soon. One story I overheard came from a farmer who has passed many a Maine winter and he was recalling the winter of '33 when it got so cold that the roosters' crows froze in mid-air. When the spring thaw came there were cock-a-doodle-dos all over the place. It was so cold that winter of '33 that the red barns all turned blue. Now I ask you, what can be "good" about that?

My own mother would have spells of romanticizing about her "good old days" when she went to school on an Indian reservation and had to walk for miles over hill and dale in all kinds of weather in her bare feet. Sure Ma.

When my daughter was a baby and my mother would spot the disposable diapers I used, she would launch into the "good old days" of her babies and boiling cloth diapers on the stove to kill the bacteria before washing them. Though she didn't exactly have to take them down to the creek and bang them on the rocks, she did seem to remember with fondness an old wringer washing machine and rinse tub.

The concept of drying clothes by a machine seemed to annoy her as she was quick to point out how sweet smelling her clothes were when she brought them in from the clothes line. She never mentioned how in the "good old days" when winters were bad she had to bring the clothes in from the line frozen stiff and standing them on end in front of the radiators to thaw them out before she could enjoy that sweet smell.

I can only imagine what it was like in the "good old days" before electricity when you had to keep the wood or oil stove going all year round just to have hot water or cook a meal. Actually, I don't have to imagine that too hard because even though I am a child of the General Electric era, my parents did not have an electric hot water heater when I was growing up. I can clearly remember, with no romantic notions, lugging pots of hot water from the oil stove in the kitchen to the tub in the bathroom just to take a bath. That was a lot of fun in 90 degree summer days. Those were "good old days" I would rather forget.

I don't have a very strong pioneer spirit and have no desire to experience the life my ancestors grew up in. I don't like winter the way it is so I don't care to ever see a four-day snowstorm. If the temperature drops below 70 degrees, I put on an extra blanket. I would definitely not survive if it ever got so cold that red barns turned blue.

I panic if I wake up to frozen pipes and turn into a basket case when there is a power outage. My idea of roughing it is to take the batteries out of the remote control.

I know that there was a time when life was simpler and people were more trusting and maybe that's what the "good old days" were all about. Violence was something people read about that happened in the big cities and folks felt comfortable leaving their doors unlocked when they were not at home. That's understandable considering that they didn't have any appliances or stereo equipment to steal.

Old timers like to brag about how they used to work from sun up to sun down and knew what a solid work ethic was all about. I'm sure they did; without a television set what else could they do?

With each new technological advancement folks' lives are made a little easier. But the current generation knows a little about work ethic too because one has to work a lot of hours to afford all that technology.

After having said all that I have about the "good old days", I must admit they really were simpler times. People were not all stressed out, there were no drug problems, families were a lot closer and the pace a little slower.

In fact, the way I see it, if you take a step back in time and you add a TV, VCR, microwave oven, dishwasher, automatic coffee pot, clothes washer and dryer, computer and a great stereo system; remove the cold and the snow, "the good old days" would have been absolutely perfect.

VETERANS' DAY OBSERVANCE—The Mundt-Allen American Legion Post #81 of Bethel observed Veteran's Day on the Common Sunday, with about two dozen people in attendance. At left, Nancy Morris plays taps; right, veterans fire a salute. Richard Grover addressed those gathered, noting that many veterans continue to serve their country in other ways after their military service is completed. Some, he said, took part in the relief effort for New York City after Sept 11.

hearts and souls in the lives of those children that are ready to lay them down for an international cause. These are the mothers of those who offer themselves as a gift to their nation and must wrestle with the inner demons created by the acting out of conflict. There are the wives who have let their hearts be given to one who is willing to give their life away.

The toll war takes on love and the human heart is incalculable. We celebrate those who have died and we honor the sacrifice they have made, but do we support those who had to fight the internal struggle to let them go? Do we even acknowledge that such a struggle takes place? If a mother or a wife let out the truth — that she hates the war, she despises the cause and that she does not consider the gift of her child a worthy form of payment for a national dues, she would reveal herself as a coward. Is she really a coward or is that wail the sound of a soul being torn?

Thank goodness Thanksgiving follows on the heels of this holiday ponderance. At least I can be grateful for those lost lives. I can be grateful to still have mine and I can be grateful for the love I had the opportunity to share with those who have died. Thanksgiving sheds light. Gratitude is a balm for the torn heart and a feast for the loving heart and it raises human existence out of the realm of turkeys.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte
Last Sunday, we observed Veterans' Day. In my mind it will always be Armistice Day.

I grew up in the 30's when World War I was the "Big One." My father was a British soldier and we were taught to treat the day with reverence in memory of the many servicemen who were wounded, gassed or lost their life in the conflict. We have had several wars since then. They are all the same when it comes with the heroism and sadness that accompanies war. The attack on our country on Sept. 11 renewed our respect and honor for these brave men and women.

It has been snowing on and off for at least a week. The amounts range from a half an inch to nine and a half inches. Penny Bernier saw close to ten inches at the "top of the world" on Back Street.

Penny and Joe Bernier and their daughter, Jennie, spent the long weekend in Upton at Heritage Farm. Jennie is a senior and an honor roll student at Fryeburg Academy. Jennie is named for her great-grandmother, Jennie Judkins.

In spite of the good tracking snow the deer kill is negligible. The Wixom party has promised me a deer liver, but so far it hasn't arrived. I am enjoying applesauce from their down-country apples. However, the bargain still stands, they get cream puffs and I get deer liver.

Buster Williamson presented me with a violet on Nov. 10. He found it blooming along the trail. I have a bright yellow primrose blooming through the snow in my garden. It is encased in ice this morning.

Jessica Casey, our first-grader, placed first in competition at the Horse Show on Saturday. Her horse came in fourth. Jessica is a natural on a horse. A tiny little girl with a big heart.

Roger Lavalley has been "substitute" plowman for Earl Largesse, who was on vacation. Earl and Lucille broke the bank in Las Vegas and then flew to California. They are going to throw a big party with their winnings and we are all invited.

There was a Health Fair held in Errol on Friday, Nov. 9. Cholesterol, blood pressure screening, health counseling and flu shots were offered. The volunteer staff came from Colebrook, Errol, Wilsons Mills, Magalloway and Upton. The atmosphere was friendly and informative.

Several people have reported cardinals at their birdfeeders. Some have seen males while others only see females. Sue Nelson has a pair, male and female. This morning, I had three bright red males and one female. That nasty red squirrel (whose days are numbered) chased them off. I think we will trap (have a heart) him and ship him to Bethel for Polly Davis to admire.

As I write this, a "special report" is on the T.V. There is another plane crash in New York. The people in New York do not need any more such incidents.

The cardinal isn't the only red bird in town. We have had an influx of White-Winged Crossbills and Pine Grosbeaks. Driving up Route 26 there are flocks in the road pecking sand for their "crops." Check your favorite bird books for information on these colorful birds. If you happen to be a "Redbird", you are the "Bird of the Week."

"Blue Birds" have also been seen in Upton. Even the birds are patriotic.

Our best wishes for a speedy recovery to "Grampa" Curtis, the father of Carolyn Hill Taylor. He is currently in a Portland Hospital.

around. See you again before winter sets in, we hope.

Happy birthday to Doris Parent from all her friends in North Newry. We hope this birthday is bright and cheery with lots of wishes that come true.

Well, winter is coming, but autumn is here. "The Indian Summer, the dead summer's soul." Autumn, in his leafless bowers, is waiting for the winter's snow. Wild is the music of autumnal winds amongst the faded woods. The misty earth below is wan and dreary, the baying winds chase all the leaves away; as hounds pursue the trembling deer; it is a solemn time, "the sunset of the year."

Ras and Karlene Bachelder and yours truly took a ride to Waterville Saturday, Nov. 3, to visit with Karlene's mother, Julia Goodwin, who resides at the Sunset Home. We found her well and happy, although she has to use a walker to get

Last Sunday was Veterans' Day, and it really seems good to see the revival of patriotism across this great land. I think something good comes from nearly every tragedy. For example, the good thing that came from the Vietnam debacle was that the soldiers who fought there learned how not to fight a war; people like Norman Schwartzkov and Colin Powell were determined not to repeat Vietnam's mistakes in the Gulf War in 1992. Sept. 11, 2001 proved that we are at war and brought out the patriotism that has lain dormant in this country since before the Korean War. I have never seen so many American flags and people watching Veterans' Day ceremonies as I saw this year.

A few days ago, when the anthrax scare was in high gear, some of us at work were speculating on the source of the virus spores. One possibility we hoped was not true was that the anthrax was distributed by a disgruntled American. That brought up the subject of the word "disgruntled." We wondered if "disgruntled" meant unhappy, did "gruntled" mean the opposite? I looked it up in my "Webster's New 20th Century Dictionary, Unabridged."

"Disgruntle, v.t.: disgruntled, ... to make peevishly discontented or disappointed; displease and make sulky." So does that mean, "gruntled" means contented or happy? I looked up "gruntled." No "gruntled," but "gruntle" means, "to grunt; to sulk." Go figure. It is sort of like "flammable" and "inflammable."

At any rate, I am relieved that the anthrax threat seems to be fading, at least for the time being. Let's hope that the perpetrator's of that scourge are soon behind bars.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson
Hi readers. On Wednesday, Nov. 7, North Waterford Friendly Seniors were treated to a nice turkey dinner following a short business meeting at North Waterford Church vestry. After the delicious dinner, the Rev. George Frobig spoke a few words and Marge Nihan read a humorous poem about aging. Later there was a sing-a-long with Sonya Millett at the piano. I think there were about 30 members present.

It was voted by members to send a donation to the Seniors Plus for their annual Christmas Gift Bag Project.

The Rev. Frobig won the door prize and Eleanor Nelson won the 50/50-ticket raffle.

There were pamphlets about health matters for people to take to read.

Members were invited to a Christmas Tea on Dec. 4 at 1 p.m. at the Calvary Church in Harrison.

Dec. 5 is the next meeting and will be held at Market Square Restaurant for a Christmas dinner and exchange of gifts for members. If there is a change on this, I will let you know. If you didn't sign up for this and want to go, please see Marjorie Kimball about it. This will be at the usual time of 11:30 a.m.

Cathy Farley of Bernard has been spending a few days with Dick and Marilyn Jones.

On Tuesday, Nov. 6, Phyllis Adams and I were ballot clerks once again for the town of Stoneham at the voting booths in the community room at the Fire Station. Town clerk Midge Salvio and treasurer, Mary Fox were there also. We had a light turnout of people but better than I had expected. It was good to see the people that did make the effort to come to vote. The tradition of the clerks having pizza in the afternoon was carried on by a certain nice lady. Thanks.

Lani and David Thompson are at home now after being away to England to visit their daughter and husband and family for several weeks.

On Nov. 7, East Stoneham Congregational Church members met at the home of Mary Grover at 7 p.m. with seven members present. The meeting was opened by the president, Sharon McAllister, and a prayer by the Rev. Frobig. There was also present a young guest, Deanna. Secretary and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. The Rev. Frobig gave his report. The annual budget will be discussed in January. The Parish meeting is scheduled for Nov. 28.

Members voted to send donations to the SAD72 Giving Tree project and also donations to the local Stoneham Christmas party for the youngsters. We will also be doing Christmas baskets again this year.

Cadet Private Jonah A. Evan, son of John G. and Gabrielle Evan of Stoneham, was inducted into the Edward B. Young Jr. Chapter of the National Junior Honor Society of Secondary Schools on Oct. 19 at Fishburns Military School, Waynesboro, Va. They are chosen for academics, leadership, service and character.

Yes, readers, the little cheapie cuckoo clock is back to normal with a little prodding from its owner. For how long, we shall see.

Yes, the world changed its looks for a few days, wearing its robe of white. It was a surprise to many.

The sun came out and there were the high wrapped peaks that glittered remote and immaculate in the distance. They looked like great angels, kneeling on earth, heads bowed in prayer. I knew how the Psalmist felt when he sang, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help."

The white birches were eye catching and spectacular with their grace. It is hard to picture a northeastern hillside without the grace of this tree against the winter hillside where its beauty stands out in a gray world.

On Sunday, I went to church. It is so good to be able to go again.

David usually comes to the farm every Sunday to be with his parents and to visit me. This weekend he came on Saturday. He and Sally went to visit their daughter, Mary, who attends college in Beverly, Mass.

Milton Inman is at home again after a few days at his camp hunting.

The American flag that now flies high above the farm fields is very inspiring. I hope it is noticed by those who go by.

I have enjoyed several callers this week.

Patch the Pirate Club meets each Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Baptist Church, same time as prayer meeting. Saturday evening at 7 p.m. is also prayer meeting. Sunday services are Sunday School and Adult Bible Fellowship at 9:15 a.m., morning worship at 10:30 a.m., Youth Group at 4:30 p.m., choir practice at 5 p.m. and evening service at 6 p.m.

Grange was canceled Monday night. The next meeting is Nov. 19; remember to bring food for the Thanksgiving basket.

The Woodstock Extension will meet at the Town Annex on Wednesday, Nov. 21 at 1 p.m. The program is Santa's Workshop and there will be a tasting party.

Curator Larry Billings has given books on France and England to the Historical Society. He has also given a cross and taped some readings on art for society members and visitors to listen to. He has also given a rare Vermont Maple Products tin. Gathering sap is a time-honored tradition in New England. He gave a beautiful tin depicting Paris. Some rare wooden walkers used by Lawrence Jordan were donated in memory of Clementine Morgan Jordan by Linda J. LaBerge. The curator got a figurine of Pocahontas. He feels it could double for Mollycodd. Like most people in the area he grew up fascinated by the legend of the Indian princess. He has a ceramic head of an Indian woman, too. He feels it represents her even better.

The birds are scarce right now. We usually have many feeding at our feeders; probably the change of seasons. We did have a cardinal for a couple of minutes last week, also a lone robin — hope he finds his way south soon.

Tim Poland got a seven-point buck that weighed in at 148 pounds. He just had a birthday and I couldn't believe he had turned 50 years old this month. Makes me feel real old.

Doug Bean also shot an eight-point buck that weighed a hefty 248 pounds.

I called my sister, Dotte Critser, one day this past weekend. Dotte lives in Tempe, Ariz. and says it is real hot there. Tempe is very near Phoenix. She said the city has had a lot of business lately because of the Arizona team and Yankees baseball games. Hotels and restaurants have been humming. Her son, Greg, works at one of the hotels there.

I had an 8 a.m. appointment at the Kidney Center in Lewiston one day last week. I need to go there every two weeks. I'm not an early morning person.

We lost our power here in South Woodstock one windy night recently, but when I got up in the morning it was back on. Thank goodness.

Tommy Poland and I took Joan Poland out to lunch at the Trolley House in Norway to celebrate Joan's birthday. Everything was very good and we always have a good time when we get together.

Quote of the Week: "I've learned that nobody wants constructive criticism. It's all we can do to put up with constructive praise."

West Paris

by Miriam Inman
Spending the week hunting at Albany camp were Vance Bacon, Gregg Inman, Vern

Inman, Walter Sr. and Walter Jr. Inman and Joe Perham. No one had good luck. Milton Inman and Vance Bacon have hunted at the same camp in Albany for 50 years and this is the first time that not a shot was fired.

Lucky hunters so far are Eric Poland and Timmy Poland.

Sayward Lamb and Leon Baker were hunting in the Eustis area. They didn't bring any deer either. I spent the week with Cynthia Lamb.

The Craft Fair at the Universalist Church was well attended. At lunchtime we had salmon chowder and beef stew made by Eleanor Inman and Peg Perham. There were sandwiches on sale, also.

Kathy Bessette spent the week with her mother, Connie Bacon, while her dad was at hunting camp.

The annual Chicken Pie Supper at Goodwill Hall of the Universalist Church will be on Nov. 15. Tickets will go on sale at 4:30 p.m. and the first setting will be at 5:30. The cost for the meal is $7 and $3 for children under 12.

The Historical Society will meet on Monday evening, Nov. 19. It will be potluck with Vern and Miriam Inman in charge.

Ginny Aridas arrived on Thursday to spend some time at the "cabin."

Greetings from a windy and blustery West Paris. Winter seems to be putting in a rather early appearance this year, with everywhere from a trace of snow up to six inches this week. Expect this made for good deer tracking but some rather tricky driving.

There were 16 senior citizens from West Paris at Maurice's Tuesday noon for the monthly

As rocks go, granite is just great. But a rock can't do what CORIAN can.

With CORIAN, satiny, sensuous curves can sweep seamlessly into matching multiple sinks. Inlays can dance across counter tops in intricate patterns. Edge treatments can add dash and dazzle...mixing a touch of metal, wood or ceramic with the easy-to-clean stain-resistant durability of CORIAN.

Route it. Carve it. Sandblast it. Even thermoform it into curves and waves. CORIAN doesn't require regular professional maintenance like granite. And with a 10-year warranty from DuPont, you won't ever find yourself between a rock and a hard place.

We have again lost members and Resolutions of Respect were read for Lloyd Davis, Eva Rogers and Marion Easter. A 100th birthday party had been planned for the latter and she passed away the day before the party, the funeral being on what would have been the actual birthday.

It was announced that the July 9 meeting, to be held at Oxford Grange in Welchville, would be a joint meeting with Androscoggin Pomona. Also, plans are to arrange a special meeting with Azischoos Grange in Wilson's Mills. That Grange is so far away and isolated from the rest of Oxford County that they find it hard to belong to Oxford Pomona, and the rest of the granges in Oxford County would find it hard to travel there for a regular Pomona meeting. Therefore, this special meeting will be arranged for the daytime.

Oxford Pomona's next meeting will be with Oxford Grange with a Christmas party. Instead of exchanging gifts, members are asked to bring non-perishable food items to be presented to a food pantry. Instead of the usual supper before the meeting, potluck refreshments will follow the meeting.

From the Bethel Rotary Club

This week in Rotary, 1987 President Rick Whitney presided over the meeting. Special guests, introduced by Steve Wight, were Sean and Mary Campbell of Belfast, Northern Ireland. They were here in part to hopefully arrange future student exchanges. Although this was their first visit to our area, their introduction to us was made several years ago.

As many of you may remember, in 1997, through the efforts of Steve Wight and his Ireland connections, Digital, and Dave Murphy and the Crescent Park School (CPS), a video Internet connection was made from CPS to the Town Hall in Belfast where our children

MEET A VETERAN

CM2 Petty Officer James Lowe, of the U.S. Navy, visited Heidi Steele's second-grade class last week. He talked to the students about his experience in the military. Lowe has served in the Navy for 16 years and is a veteran of the Persian Gulf conflict. His daughter, Hannah, is a student in Steele's class.

and the children of Belfast saw and communicated with each other. Sean Campbell, vice principal of St. Malachy's School in Belfast, said that that connection was much more than an intercultural connection between two towns. It aided in the spread of information and technology of computers and Internet services in their school in Northern Ireland. Although Southern Ireland is as technical as any nation, Northern Ireland lags behind. In fact, Internet services at his school were being installed as he was visiting us. Another direct benefit from that connection was the creation of awareness of computers and to provide training for such. Also, two teachers from his school have been asked to assist their Department of Education to help teach others what they have learned.

Sean shared with us that he believed the politics in Northern Ireland are finally working. He commended former President Clinton and Senator Mitchell for their work and support. The IRA is decommissioning weapons and he believed that within 10 to 15 years that there would be a United Ireland within a United Europe. Another interesting fact he shared with us was that 10 percent of the United States has passports compared to 60 percent of Ireland. Further, Sean attributes the keys to business growth that Ireland has experienced lately are due to its highly educated workforce and that Ireland has access to the European market.

Ambassadorial Scholar Alex Gillies has completed two months in Ghana, Africa. She says that she has experienced and learned so much already that she can only imagine what the rest of the year will hold. She is becoming less daunted by the challenges she faces — coming to terms with the poverty around her, making cultural adjustments, making friends from acquaintances, not blending in, and being far from home in the wake of the 9/11 events.

Alex is enrolled at the University of Ghana in the Legion Center for International Affairs' Master's program. She comments that the program is highly impressive and intense so far. She has had the pleasure to interact with the Rotary community and participate in some Rotary functions at the closest club in Accra. She said that she has trouble summing up her experience thus far because her high expectations for this year are being exceeded due to the breadth and intensity of the experience. We continue to wish Alex luck and support and we look forward to hearing more of her experiences.

The first deadline approaches — Buy a Poinsettia. Phase 1 orders are due by Nov. 20 and will be available for delivery Nov. 23 to 25.

Poinsettias are great for that special event, home decoration, or gift. Thanks to Designs, we're selling two sizes of white and red poinsettia plants. Small size is $18 and large size is $22. Place your order with any Bethel Rotarian or call Cynthia at 824-4500 or Dawna at 336-9050. Proceeds from this sale support the Bethel Rotary's many community projects.

It's hard to believe it's that time again — Rotary's Fall Country Breakfast is Sunday, Nov. 25, 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. at Gould Academy's Ordway Dining Hall. Adult tickets are $5; under 12 tickets are $2.50. This All-You-Can-Eat breakfast buffet benefits local scholarships and international projects.

The Bethel Club extends congratulations to our neighboring Bridgton Rotary Club. Bridgton will be celebrating their 10th Anniversary on Nov. 17. Several members from our club will be joining them in that evening celebration. The clubs of Bethel and Bridgton share a special association as Bethel sponsored Bridgton in becoming a club.

Upcoming programs: Club Assembly; Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corp.; Sunday River Resort's Snowmaking Factory.

Inside Rotary — How 'bout those BC and Penn State fans? Happy Birthday, Peggy. Congratulations for the addition to your family, Kathy. Thanks for your help with the Trees for Kids, Steve. Thank you Bethel Alliance Church for being our hosts and The Good Food Store for the great breakfasts.

The Bethel Rotary Club meets 7:30 a.m. at the Gideon Hastings House on Nov. 20 and at Sunday River Resort on Nov. 27.

The annual Christmas tree lighting will be held at 6:00 p.m. at the Bethel common, complete with Santa and plenty of holiday music on the gazebo. Many other events will also be held that weekend, so keep your eye on the Bethel Citizen for details.

Notes from

SAD44 Adult Ed

The GED tests, offered for many years throughout the world and since 1976 at Telstar Regional High School through the SAD44 Adult Education program, are undergoing an extensive revision as of Jan. 1, 2002. All individuals wishing to complete their GED under the current tests must begin testing prior to Dec. 1, in order to complete the process by the end of the year. Anyone who has started but not completed the process in the past is especially encouraged to contact the Adult Education office at 824-2780, as scores from the previous versions of the tests will not be carried over to the new test.

Changes in the GED tests for 2002 include the use of a calculator on a portion of the Mathematics test and the use of more critical thinking skills in the formulation of test questions. The content areas, Writing, Social Studies, Science, Reading, and Math, are closely correlated with national standards in effect for high school graduates. All portions of the new tests will be scored at the Maine Department of Education, with results promised back to the local program within a week. The exception to this will be the Writing Sample, which will continue to be sent to Oklahoma for scoring as is currently done.

Learning Center instructors, Lee Dolleman and Jeanette Baldridge, as well as counselor Nina Mollicone and Director Cathy Newell, have attended training on preparation for and administration of the new tests.

Learning Center hours are Monday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Thursday, 9 a.m. to noon. In addition, special hours by appointment, including Saturdays, will be provided for testing before Dec. 31 as needed to provide sufficient time for those in process to finish.

From the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

The Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center will be sponsoring a Gingerbread House Contest during the upcoming holidays. Individuals, families, students, and organizations are encouraged to enter the contest, which is open to all ages. Recipes and instructions will be available at the society's Robinson and Mason houses for those interested. All entries should be delivered to the Robinson House, 10 Broad Street, on Nov. 30 between 1 and 4 p.m. The gingerbread houses will be on display at least until Dec. 21, and will be judged by visitors to the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center. Prizes will be awarded and all entries will be returned. It is hoped that this contest and exhibit will become an annual event. Anyone wishing further information should call the society at 824-2908.

Sponsors for the fourth annual New Year's Bethel are being sought. Any individuals and/or businesses that wish to be listed as a sponsor of this chemical-free/family oriented event should send their tax-deductible gift to the society at P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.

MIDSHIPMAN HAWKINS

Midshipman Seth Hawkins was recently sworn in as a member of the Maine Maritime Academy Regiment of Midshipman at a ceremony held earlier this fall during the college's annual Family and Friends Weekend.

RPT, a six-week intensive training program, emphasizes traditions of the MMA Regiment of Midshipmen, military drill, aquatic training and ship familiarization. While in the program, candidates for the Regiment of Midshipmen received instruction and guidance in their conduct and responsibilities as midshipmen and potential seafaring officers.

The MMA Regiment of Midshipmen, a student-run management model, is comprised of students seeking a U.S. Merchant Marine license as a third mate or a third assistant engineer following graduation.

For other students at the college, participation in the Regiment is optional.

Hawkins, a graduate of Gould Academy, is a member of the MMA Class of 2005. He is majoring in Marine Transportation Operations.

Maine Maritime Academy, founded in 1941, enrolls more than 720 students from 35 states and several foreign countries. The college awards A.S., B.S. and M.S. degrees in 10 fields of study.

Meet Marj Patrick, our reader's representative. As a kind of ombudsman for Sun Journal readers, her calls include requests for corrections in news items, such as stories or captions. She uses her experience as an editor and reporter to try to sort things out. In some cases, she verifies the reader's information and writes a correction for page A2. Other times she turns down the request because it turns out the published information was accurate. Many newspapers don't have this kind of ombudsman, but it's part of the Sun Journal's commitment to its community.

WILLA C. CARVER

Willa C. Carver, 97, a former resident of Mexico, died Saturday, Nov. 10, 2001 at the Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Mrs. Carver was born on June 16, 1904 in Andover, the daughter of Alonzo and Eva (Crooker) Spidell. She had attended Andover schools and graduated from Andover High School with the Class of 1921 and had attended Gorham Normal School. She married, on Jan. 21, 1925, the late Wesley Carver of Mexico.

Mrs. Carver worked for the U.S. Postal Service for 37 years before retiring in 1967. She was a member of the Mexico Congregational Church and a member of the Rumford Senior Citizens Club, where she served as a volunteer for several years. She was a devoted 76-year member of Purity Rebekah Lodge of Rumford, where she served in all offices of the local lodge. She was a past noble grand of the Rebekah Lodge as well as a past district deputy president.

Survivors include a son, Stanford and his wife Pauline of Wappingers, N.Y.; two grandsons; and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 16, at the Meader & Son Funeral Home, 3 Franklin Street, Rumford with the Rev. Virginia Snapp-Cunningham officiating. Interment will be at Woodlawn Cemetery, Andover. Those who desire, please contribute

Card of Thanks

The family of Nellie Howard wish to thank all of you who sent cards or flowers. If you were present at the service or kept us in your hearts and prayers, it was greatly appreciated. Special thanks to Pastor Jane Rich, Arthur Meader, and the wonderful ladies who provided the luncheon at the C.E.B. after the services. God bless you all.

From the family of Nellie Howard
